M., K. & T. HIGHER AFTER DECLINE

Week-end Sales Cause Stock Market Prices to Yield.

STEADINESS AT CLOSE

Inability of Banks to Lend Deposits Reflected in Report of Surplus Reserve.

New York, Sept. 11.—Week-end closing out of long commitments, together with offerings by floor traders, caused the stock market to yield slightly today. Not changes for the day, however, were not important.

The reaction which set in Friday afternoon continued at the opening yesterday. Initial changes showed fractional declines, which were magnified in the early dealings. A better tone developed in the late dealings and the close was steady.

The inability of the banks to lend their deposits was again reflected in a record surplus reserve of $24,122,000 reported by the New York clearing house banks to their statement of actual condition as of yesterday.
